

Total Attendance at Stampede Hits 33,010

Saturday Show Hurt by Winds

A 11,780 Saturday crowd boosted this year's attendance at the Medicine Hat Exhibition and Stampede to 33,010, some 3,500 fewer than attended the show last year.

A violent hour-long wind storm with winds gusting to 68 miles per hour cancelled the evening grandstand performance.

The cancelled show went on Sunday afternoon before 1,970 on-lookers. The Stampede Company announced that those not in attendance Sunday can get their money refunded by mailing their unused tickets to the Stampede Company.

Highlighting the day's events were the horse show in the morning, the crowning of Kay Thierman, Lethbridge, as Miss Rodeo Canada at 2 pm, and the ever-popular rodeo.

Roy Jones, a stocky blonde cowboy from George West, Texas, is $500.49 richer today. In three days of competing in the rodeo events at the Medicine Hat Exhibition and Stampede, Jones won $314.50 in the steer wrestling competitions and $185.99 in the calf roping to earn top money at the show. Cam Ellis, Skookumchuk, B.C., and calf roper deluxe won $498.66 in that competition, good enough for second money in the entire rodeo. Medicine Hat's Rocky Rockabar netted $415.60 for third money. His prizes were split between saddle bronc riding, Brahma bull riding, and steer wrestling.

Second go-rounds were completed in all events Saturday except saddle bronc riding which had a third go-round and the finals, barrel racing which featured three races, and wild cow milking which was also contested three times.

Irvin Carlson, Great Falls, Montana, won the second go-round in the calf roping with a 15.2 second effort. Second and third place day winners were Jim Gladstone, Cardston, with a 14.6-second job, and Eddie Cochlan, Staveloy, who took 15.2 seconds to rope, throw, and hogtie his calf.

Two Fast Times Earned Ellis Calf-Roping Honor

Cam Ellis, winner of the first go-round, took just 28.1 seconds for his two calves for low total in the calf roping during the rodeo. Irvin Carlson was second low man with 35.1 seconds, while Bob Ragsdale of Wilder, Utah, had the third best total time of 35.6 seconds.

In the saddle bronc event Keith Hyland, Black Diamond, won the third go-round with 177 points and the high total of 688. He was followed by Rocky Rockabar in the rodeo total with 698. Rocky was the winner of the second go-round with 177 points and placed second in the final Saturday with 173.

Leo Brown of Czar was third high saddle bronc man for the

Manderville, Swanson Tie in Steer Wrestling

Hal Manderville, Lethbridge, and Jones, split top honors in the steer wrestling competition with 114-second totals. Jerry Swanson, Limon, Colo., was third with a 12.8-second total while Glenn Fritzer, Pryor, Montana, was fourth with 13.3 seconds.

Jones won the second go-round in this event with a 4.2 second job. Rocky Rockabar, Medicine Hat was second with 5.2 seconds and Stan Walker, Lethbridge, was third with 5.7 seconds.

Cody Morris, Black Diamond, led the bare back bronc riders with a 346 point total. He also won the second go-round with 178 points. George Myron, Viking, tied for second in total points with 345 with Bob Brown of Nanton.

Patty Ivens Easy Winner In Barrel Racing Contest

Patty Ivens, Fort Macleod, shook off a third place finish Friday to come back and win Saturday's barrel race with a 16.5-second effort. Patty had won Thursday's race, also with a 16.5-second time, and her three scores were good enough for the overall championship time of 50.4 seconds.

Viola Thomas, Calgary, posted a 17.1 time for second place in the go-round and her 51.9-second total won her second place in the three day total. Isobel Hamilton, fourth Saturday placed third overall with a 52.5 second total.

RODEO ROUNDUP: The Butcherfields of Ponoka, and the

See — RODEO (Page 7)

IVENS barrel racing

MORRIS bare back

MANDERVILLE steer wrestling

GARSTEAD Brahma bulls

HYLAND saddle bronc

ELLIS calf roping

Proof of Russian Piracy Claimed by U.S. on RB-47

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States asserted today it has scientific proof that Soviet fighter planes deliberately manoeuvred a U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance plane off its course and shot it down over international waters. U.S. delegate Henry Cabot

Lodge denounced the action as "a criminal and reckless act of piracy which the Soviet Union tried to hide with "reckless talk" But he did not seek council condemnation of the Soviet Union. Instead he submitted a resolution calling on the council either to name an impartial fact-finding mission to investigate the incident, or to submit the entire matter to the international court of justice.

He produced two maps to demonstrate his points. REJECTS U.S. VERSION

Vasily Kuznetsov, a deputy foreign minister who came from Moscow to represent the U.S.S.R. in the debate, rejected the U.S. proposal for an international investigation.

Speaking in reply to Lodge, the Soviet official accused the United States of "cynicism without precedent" in trying to play on the emotions of the wives and relatives of the crew members.

He called Lodge's speech a "coarse fabrication from beginning to end," intended to deceive the people of the United States and world opinion.

Kuznetsov repeated the Soviet charge that the RB-47 was an aggressive spy mission in Soviet air space.

Lodge said of the Soviet act of shooting down the plane July 1: "This astonishing and criminal act is established beyond doubt by the evidence of our scientific devices." He did not go into details and U.S. sources said the exact nature was withheld because it involved secret information.

He accused the Soviet Union of denying the two survivors of the RB-47 crew of six their rights under international law and denounced this as "flagrant disregard for the standards of international conduct."

In the spectators' gallery, the wives of the RB-47 crew, watched as Lodge pointed with his finger to the maps upon which the course he said the plane followed was charted.

Lodge called the Soviet charges that the plane violated U.S.S.R. air space a "complete fabrication" which must be dismissed as a poor attempt to cloak a wanton attack on a plane over international waters.

Pilot's Body Surrendered

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today handed over to American officials the body of Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39-year-old pilot of the U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance plane shot down by Soviet fighters over the Arctic July 1.

Palm's body was returned to an American consul Richard Schneider in a Moscow mortuary while a uniformed guard of honor of American military and air force attaches was kept waiting for half an hour on the sidewalk outside.

The body, in a plain brown coffin, was driven in a canvas-covered Soviet army truck to Sheremetyevo airport to be flown to Amsterdam aboard a chartered Dutch plane on the first leg of its flight back home.

The Sport Shirt Reigns Supreme!

Former United States president Harry Truman was famous for his collection of Hawaiian sport shirts and infamous for the times he wore them.

While the splashy Hawaiian shirts have closet favor with most of the male population, more conservative sport shirts are still the rave. And, Medicine Hat men will have the opportunity to model theirs for the next month.

Sport Shirt Month officially opened today and will reign

RODEO QUEEN — Miss Rodeo Canada 1960, Kay Thierman of Lethbridge, left, thanks Stampede officials shortly after crowning ceremonies in the arena Saturday afternoon. Her

Huge Water Plane Joins Fire Fight

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A giant flying boat, dropping swimming-pool size loads of water, joined the battle Sunday as 2,351 men fought almost 300 forest fires in central British Columbia.

Forest service officials said the four-engined Martin Mars flying boat, capable of dropping 7,000 gallons of water — roughly the amount used in a small backyard swimming pool—at a time, appeared successful in fighting a 13,000-acre fire that is burning out of control 73 miles southwest of here.

All other flying was forbidden over the Spius Creek fire, that has kept more than 600 men busy for more than a week, as the flying boat made eight runs over it.

The 80-ton plane, loaned to the forest service by coast timber companies for trial purposes, scooped up water from nearby Nicola Lake and dropped it on "hot spots" of the fire that is burning through "very good" stands of spruce red cedar, fir and yellow pine.

Its water drop was said to be comparable to a heavy rain over an area 600 feet by 200 feet. It did the work done previously by three Avenger and one Flying Fortress aircraft.

The forest service said 137 bulldozers and 10 aircraft were helping men fight fires in the district. Twelve new fires were reported during the week end, most of them "sleepers" that were caused by a lightning storm July 13.

It said lower temperatures and higher humidity than during the last week eased conditions in the Kamloops and neighboring Nelson districts although the forest fire rating was still high to extreme.

High 85; Low 60

Whopping New Tax Demand Tabled by Quebec, Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario and Quebec placed whopping new demands before Prime Minister Diefenbaker today for a fatter share of the Canadian tax pie.

The proposal by Ontario's Premier Frost, made the opening of the three-day federal-provincial conference on tax-sharing, was even larger than that called for by Quebec's new Liberal leader, Premier Lesage.

But Premier Lesage, breaking new ground for his province by making the first tax-share proposal veer to come from Quebec, also dropped a bombshell in calling for a bill of rights embodied in the Canadian constitution and applying in both federal and provincial jurisdictions.

The financial demands by the two largest provinces followed an opening statement by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in which he emphasized the "increasing strains" on the federal purse from increases already made in federal payments to the provinces.

The provinces should keep in mind, he said, the very large increases in both unconditional tax-share payments and abatements and in conditional payments for shared-cost programs. These had risen in total to an estimated $1,258,000,000 this year from $664,000,000 four years ago.

But Premier Frost ruled out any federal attempt to plead poverty. The old argument that Ottawa can't afford this or that, he said, "does not apply."

He demanded for Ontario "our right"—a progressive expansion over a five-year period to a 50-per-cent share of personal and corporation income tax collections.

This share, he said, "constitutionally belongs to us." He made no proposal for a change in the 50-50 split of succession duties—third of the direct tax fields involved in the conference bargaining.

Premier Lesage, speaking mainly in French, followed with a demand for 25 per cent of the personal and corporation income tax fields and for all of the succession duty.

"This proposal seems to us far from being exaggerated and we firmly hope it will be accepted," Mr. Lesage said.

The strong Quebec and Ontario proposals made it evident that some heavy arguing will go on at this conference — and at one or more later conferences which are expected before settlement is reached on a new tax-sharing agreement to succeed the present arrangement expiring March 31, 1962.

The present tax-share arrangement provides provinces this "standard tax" share: 13 per cent of personal income tax collections, nine per cent of corporation profits, and 50 per cent of succession duties. This is the so-called 13-9-50 formula. In effect, the share of corporation profits works out to 18 per cent of the federal tax rate of 50 per cent on profits over $20,000.

Neither Premier Frost nor Premier Lesage estimated what their proposals would mean in dollar terms to the provinces.

However, federal figures indicate the Ontario demand would mean a tripling in the provincial share of the personal and corporate income tax fields. In the current fiscal year they yield some $3,370,000,000 and the proposed half-share would amount to $1,685,000,000. Present tax-share payments and abatements in these two fields amount to some $563,000,000.

The Quebec proposal for a quarter-share of the two income tax fields and all of the succession duty field would mean an estimated $947,000,000 to all provinces, compared with the present $615,700,000 in tax-share payments and abatements in all three fields.

Mr. Lesage's surprise announcement was his support of a bill of rights that would apply in both federal and provincial jurisdictions.

Such a bill, he said, "would have a much greater actual and symbolic value if it were a part of our constitution."

He proposed a preliminary discussion on this now to decide "whether it should be studied more thoroughly when the conference resumes its meetings."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's bill of rights, now before the Commons, has been under opposition attack because it isn't an amendment to the constitution.

Rioting Sweeps Rhodesian City

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters) — Extra troops were ordered into Bulawayo as crowds of Negroes smashed stores, beerhalls and cars in the second day of demonstrations against a ban on political meetings.

Government officials said more troops are on their way to Bulawayo and more active steps will be taken to deal with the situation when they arrive.

Heavily-armed police swooped down on groups of Negroes, dispersing them with tear gas. Armored cars guarded entrances to native townships.

Industrial areas were cordoned off by troops and business was virtually at a standstill.

Negro employees who turned out for work were met by groups of demonstrators and soon were streaming back to their homes in the townships.

Boy's Body Recovered From River

Reinhold Laehr found the Medicine Hat boy's body along the banks of the river near his farm house.

Young Smathers drowned last Tuesday afternoon while wading in the river near Strathcona Island.

Funeral services for the boy will be held Tuesday at 3:45 pm from Pattison's Chapel. He was born at Brooks, April 3, 1950 and was raised at Lomond, Vauxhall, Taber and Bow Island. The family moved to Medicine Hat January, 1960, and lived at 447 Allowance Ave.

He had completed grade four at Montreal public school this past June.

He is survived by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smathers; three sisters, Darlene, Brenda and Debra, at home; a brother Darrel, at home, and brother Vern of Taber. Also surviving are paternal grandparents, Mrs. Ella Smathers of Spring Valley, Sask., and Mrs. Cynthia Blinkinsop, Tuxford, Sask.

Rev. William Wright will conduct services and burial will follow in Hillside cemetery. Pattison Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

The rioting started Sunday when thousands demonstrated against the banning of political meetings.

Troops finally were called in. The demonstration started in the Negro quarter of Bulawayo in protest against a ban imposed on a meeting of the National Democratic party.

Crowds singing "God save Africa" marched toward the centre of the city carrying sticks and stones. They scattered when police fired tear gas at them but reformed immediately.

They continued their demonstrations throughout the day and did not retreat until troops moved in.

The rioting following disturbances last week in Negro townships near Salisbury in protest against the arrest of three leaders of the National Democratic party, which is demanding greater rights for Negroes in this self-governing British colony.

Longer Hemlines For Fall Styles

PARIS (Reuters)—Long hemlines were definitely the order of the day in the collection of Jacques Griffe shown today—the first of the fall and winter fashion shows.

The hemlines came well down below the knee. Griffe's inaugural presentation had sombre colors, no tricks or special treats, and evolved supple sheaths as the No. 1 silhouette.

JONES steer wrestling and all-round

ROCKABAR high local