CURTAIN FALLS TONIGHT

Lethbridge Fair Goes Into Closing Stages

Lethbridge and District Exhibition was back in full swing today after rain interrupted Friday night's program forcing cancellation of part of the grandstand performance.

The four-day show, biggest of its kind in Southern Alberta, winds up tonight. Friday normally is a light day at the exhibition compared with Thursday and Saturday but a bad break from the weather made it even more so.

Total admissions to the grounds Friday was 5,084 compared with the record-breaking figure of 13,309 Thursday and 7,019 recorded on Friday, 1957.

Paid admissions to the rodeo during the afternoon totalled 1,745 compared with 429 people Thursday and the record for a Friday set in 1949 at 4,102. The afternoon grandstand on Friday last year was 1,602.

The evening grandstand Friday was larger than the attendance at the rodeo, despite rain late in the afternoon and during the evening. Total paid admissions at the grandstand Friday evening was 2,242 as compared to 3,245 on Friday night last year and the all-time Friday record of 4,251 established in 1956.

Although skies threatened all afternoon the first rain did not come until about 6 p.m. It was light and gave exhibition officials little trouble.

However, just as the first chuckwagon race got underway at about 7:25 the rain started in earnest and by the time the third heat got underway the track was a sea of mud.

The "parade of champions" — prize winning livestock — was held despite a downpour and the rain then let up long enough for Miss Joanne Sharples of Claresholm to be crowned Miss Rodeo Canada.

After the stage had been swept down and dried out as much as possible the evening platform show got underway, although behind schedule because of the rain.

The show carried on for about one-half hour and was then halted for 20 minutes while performers waited out another downpour. After the show was resumed it was again forced to stop at about 9:45 p.m. with five or six acts left unperformed.

Despite the breaks in the show, presented by Sebbrand Brothers Midway and Circus, the crowd was good natured about the whole situation and showed its appreciation of what was presented.

Main concern to exhibition officials Friday night was whether or not the track would be dry enough to run the chuckwagon races Saturday night. It was also felt that the rodeo itself would probably still be wet but that the stampede would carry on as usual that is unless considerably more rain fell.

Commenting on the situation, Charles Parry, secretary manager of the exhibition, said: "That track will have to be awfully muddy to stop the chuckwagons from running. I think we will be able to go if we do not get a lot more rain Saturday."

As far as the whole day went Mr. Parry said: "We were a little disappointed with the weather today. We expected a light crowd but the weather made it lighter than we had anticipated."

A survey by the post office showed that most householders in residential areas were being adequately served with one delivery a day.

Prince Has New Title

PRINCE CHARLES

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth named her nine-year-old son, Prince Charles, Prince of Wales today.

Buckingham Palace confirmed the appointment after the Queen announced in a broadcast message at the conclusion of the Empire Games at Cardiff, in Wales, that she intended to do so.

Speaking to "all the Welsh people," the Queen said: "I intend to create my son Charles Prince of Wales today. When he is grown up I will present him to you at Caernarvon."

Caernarvon is the reputed birthplace of Edward II, first Prince of Wales.

The last to hold the title of Prince of Wales was King Edward VIII, who abdicated in 1936 and now is Duke of Windsor.

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General William Hamilton said today the Progressive Conservative government does not intend to restore twice-a-day postal delivery in residential areas, abolished in 1952 by the former Liberal administration.

He told the Commons, as debate opened on his department's $162,238,824 spending program for the current fiscal year, that the step would cost taxpayers $5,000,000 annually.

Okotoks Decision Deferred

OKOTOKS, Alta. (CP) — Judge Hugh Farthing said Friday he will reserve decision into the dismissal of John H. Ellis, Okotoks high school principal, by trustees.

Judge Farthing said his verdict on the board of reference hearing into reports of lack of discipline and poor scholastic achievement at the school will be forwarded to Hon. A. O. Aalberg, Alberta education minister.

Mr. Ellis, speaking in his own defence Friday in the fourth day of the hearing, said teachers in his school were always complaining but seldom had real complaints naming guilty students.

In rebuttal, Mrs. Patricia Palmer said she and other teachers bought names of offenders to Mr. Ellis many times.

In a memo to teachers produced as an exhibit, Mr. Ellis wrote that he had never said that there was a discipline problem and that some teachers had carried on a "well-organized campaign" to have him dismissed.

Reports made by L. W. Cornallus, high school inspector, were presented to the board of reference indicating the inspector's satisfaction with Mr. Ellis' work. The reports used such expressions as "very good leadership," "discipline under careful surveillance of Mr. Ellis," and "firm but friendly" when speaking of the principal.

The inspector had written that it was "impossible" to do justice to the duties of teaching administration and supervision demands of the principal in that school.

C. M. Laverty, superintendent of schools for the Foothills Division, testified in extensive detail concerning school administration in Okotoks. The request of John Dea, counsel for Mr. Ellis, that Mr. Laverty be accepted as an "expert witness" was refused by the court on the basis of his involvement with the case.

Cardston Repeats In Queen Contest

Miss Joanne Sharples of Claresholm, a slim 19-year-old blonde, was crowned with the traditional white Stetson hat and named Miss Rodeo Canada for 1958 at ceremonies Friday evening prior to the Lethbridge Exhibition grandstand show. Runner-up was Julie Gough of Okotoks.

The attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sharples, who ranch southwest of Claresholm, won the queen title and the right to represent Canada in the Miss Rodeo America contest in Las Vegas in December. There were six other contestants.

FOUR IN A ROW — Miss Sharples represented Cardston rodeo in the finals. Miss Sharples' victory in the Canada contest marked the fourth consecutive win for Cardston entrants.

Miss Connie Ivins of Cardston won the contest in 1955, Miss Mary Lynn Cook in 1956, and Miss Dixie Forsyth in 1957.

The 1958 queen was crowned by Miss Forsyth, last year's winner. She was presented with a number of gifts, among them $200 in cash from the Canadian Rodeo Queen Association; a set of white matched luggage from the T. Eaton Company and engraved belt buckle from the Broder Canning Company of Lethbridge. Each entrant in the competition received a special prize from the Lethbridge Exhibition Board.

Miss Sharples, eldest of four girls in the Sharples family, has been riding horses since she was three years of age and is proud of her quarter horse Gypsy. In the present contest she was riding one of the horses she is breaking for a younger sister.

She took her public and high school studies in Claresholm and during the past year completed her first year in the college of education at the University of Alberta. In September she will begin teaching in Edmonton.

Two years ago Miss Sharples competed in the rodeo queen contest but lost to Miss Mary Lynn Cooke of Cardston.

Unsuccessful contestants in the 1958 Miss Rodeo Canada contest were: Miss Audrey Hall of Seven Persons representing Medicine Hat; Miss Shirley Douglas of Groton representing Foremost; Miss Sally Bechtel of Pincher Creek representing Pincher Creek; Miss Coralee Corcolone of Hillcrest representing Coleman; and Miss Carmen Brandley of Monarch representing Lethbridge.

After three dances with Mr. Turner, who flew to Vancouver for the occasion, the princess retired to a small table on a lawn outside the ballroom and talked with him for an hour and seven minutes. During that time she refused invitations to supper at least four times.

Afterwards the princess and Mr. Turner returned to the floor to pick up the end of a Latin-American number and then dance through "I'll See You in My Dreams."

Canada Gain Offsets Losses

OTTAWA — Canada has repeated a suggestion that she ... to any projected meeting at the summit, and has spelled out a possible blueprint for its procedure.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, winding up a day-long Commons debate on external affairs, said Friday night that the suggested UN Security Council session with heads of government discussing the Middle East is the United Nations' "appointment with destiny."

External Affairs Minister Smith, leading off debate, proposed a system of internationally guaranteed neutrality for Lebanon which, if successful, might be applied in other troubled Arab nations.

Opposition Leader Pearson, however, suggested a three-point "push" by Canada at the forthcoming fall session of the UN General Assembly.

Canada, he said, should urge: restriction of nuclear arms production to the United Kingdom, the United States and Russia; a five-year ban on nuclear tests; establishment of a permanent UN police force.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the agenda should be drawn up at special preliminary meetings of the Security Council, and involve the whole question of Arab nationalism and general Middle East problems.

Once the top-level meeting convened, the heads of government would make known their views and then the "four or five" countries directly concerned would hold private discussions with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld in the chair.

Prime Minister Nehru, "who has a contribution to make at this time," could be invited to attend, as stipulated by Mr. Khrushchev. Mr. Hammarskjöld would report on the results of the closed meeting to the full council.

Mr. Smith, in his proposal for guaranteeing Lebanon neutrality, suggested a solution might parallel the truce-supervisory commissions set up by the 1954 Geneva agreements in Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam.

Temperature Over 110, Boy May Make Medical History

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Donald Kree, 13, complained of a bump on the back of his head last Sunday. His parents applied an ice pack and the swelling seemed to go away.

Then Wednesday morning his father, Lloyd Kree, a taxicab driver, returned home to find his son in agony. The boy's face was inflamed and swollen, his features distorted.

The boy was taken to hospital. When doctors took the boy's temperature, the thermometer rose to 110 degrees, the highest it would register. The boy's fever was even higher.

Doctors packed the boy in ice. They said if he lived, it would make medical history. Physicians at Good Samaritan Hospital said they could not recall any instance of a person's temperature being that high.

After 24 hours in an ice pack the boy's fever was reduced to 105 degrees and then to 103.

He still is in a semi-coma, the hospital reported.
